

GPOFCU - In Your Community

Washington, DC, March 6th, 2010 -

“Financial empowerment for our community!” That was the goal of the Dollars + Sense Expo held at Friendship Collegiate Academy in Northeast DC on March 6th.

GPOFCU’s staff and board members participated in this first annual consumer expo, providing financial education resources and counseling, and offering the benefits of GPOFCU membership to attendees. Anyone who lives, works, goes to church or school, or regularly conducts business in the District of Columbia (all areas of Southeast, Southwest, Northeast, and most of Northwest) are eligible to join GPOFCU.

The Dollars + Sense Expo was organized by the Maryland & District of Columbia Credit Union Association to bring together a number of financial experts and resources to arm consumers with the tools needed to make informed decisions about their money in today’s struggling economy.
